WEBER MURPHY FOX CAPABILITIES STATEMENT: GOVERNMENT

Government & Municipal Experience

Government facilities provide the backdrop and serve as the workplace for a wide range of public functions while simultaneously serving an even broader constituency. The critical interface between citizens and their government is itself an opportunity to assess challenging issues related to safety, accessibility, and privacy - as well as a distinct challenge to enhance this overall experience that is generally both an infrequent and sometimes confounding interface for the general public.

In addition to being functional the form itself should convey a requisite value to the tax paying public. And every great governmental facility should address the unique social character while being in scale with the economic capability of the specific public sector being served. In the end, and when successfully combined, dynamic and enduring public architecture address a variety of technical, practical and aesthetic matters while defining the values of the constituency it serves within a budget it can afford.

"In demonstrating effective neighboring structure compatibility, we would like to showcase your project planned for 700 West College Avenue. The plans reviewed by the Board made exemplary use of materials and style to complement the existing character of the neighborhood."

Kevin Gombotz, Former Chairman Design Review Board
Borough of State College

Leadership

Jack P. Lynch

Mr. Lynch brings client-centric understanding to his leadership role for the Government & Municipal sector. Jack's distinguished career as a public servant in the capacity of a County Planning Director and as a Crawford County Commissioner frames his rich knowledge of this sector.

This experience translates into a rich and deep understanding of the municipal planning and implementation process. Jack truly understands how our governmental clients think and what motivates them as public servants. This insight allows Jack to craft teams and approaches that support their perspective.

Jack earned his Master in Urban Planning, Design and Development from Cleveland State University in 1993. His Bachelor of Science in Applied Science, Civil Engineering Technology was earned from Youngstown State University in 1984.
